PREFACE

In 1792 Charles Mongan, the future Bishop of Cloyne, changed his name to Warburton, the name of his maternal cousins. His descendants form a second clan of Irish Warburtons. There is inconclusive evidence that his Warburton cousins, and maybe his mother, were descended from one of the sons of Richard of Dublin, ancestor of the Garryhinch Warburtons.

First Generation

1. Dominic O'Mungan. Dominic was born in 1715. Dominic died in Tyrone, Ireland, abt 1774.

The story of Dominic O'Mungan his life and descendants to the next 2 generations, especially including Bishop Mongan Warburton, is told by Norman Mongan in his book 'The Menapia Quest.' published Herodotus Press 1995, p165-169.

He was the famed blind "poor road-way" bard harpist of Tyrone County.

Dominic married Anne Warburton (possibly).

The identification of an Alicia Warburton as cousin-german to Terence Charles Mongon, and sponsor of his change of name in 1792, means that either Dominic married a Warburton, or his sister-in-law did.

A hand drawn tree in the genealogical extracts of Sir William Betham references Ralph Bigland (1712-84) an antiquarian and Norroy King at Arms, as both the source of the tree, and the subsequent disclaimer to its truth. It shows that Anne, the mother of Rev. Charles Mongan, was herself a Warburton before her marriage.

However the London Gazette entry announcing the change of name refers to it only as the name of Charles's maternal cousins, and not his mother's maiden name. It is possible that it was Anne's unidentified sister who married a Warburton and produced Charles's Warburton cousins. However as it was Alicia who was sponsoring the change of name this could be sufficient explanation for the omission.

The pedigree also suggests that Charles's cousins were descended from John, son of Richard of Dublin, being the children of his son William. This would make William a prime candidate for the 'cousin William of London' in the will of John's nephew Richard. Betham's tree would seem to lack at least one generation given the time lapse involved, and this could explain why he says his pedigree is inaccurate.

However 'cousin' could cover a cousin once removed, and Richard did have a cousin Richard who had a son William who was living in London around the time of Richard's will.

Therefore, given that William is not mentioned in the wills of his father, mother or brother, he probably didn't exist.

It is possible that William of London was a parent or grandparent of the William and Alicia mentioned in the London Gazette, but no actual proof has been uncovered.

The connection to an established Anglo-Irish protestant family could also explain why the sons of a blind harpist could afford a sound education, and why two of them subsequently renounced the Catholic faith.

They had the following children:

- i. Mark Mongan. Mark was born abt 1750. Mark died abt 1775.

According the 'Menapia Quest' by Norman Mongan page 166, Mark was educated to be a priest and achieved excellent results at the College in Louvain. But when he returned from his study "he fell into a decay and died at his father's house in Strabane".

- ii. John Mongan. John was born in Monaghan, County Monaghan Ireland, abt 1753. John died in Monaghan, County Monaghan Ireland, on 31 Oct 1803.

According the 'Menapia Quest' by Norman Mongan page 166, John was the second son of Dominic O'Mungan. He practised in and about Monaghan as a medical doctor, and had a good reputation. He recanted his Catholic faith and was killed in a carriage accident coming home from the races at Middleton in 1803, leaving several children, three of whom were brought up in the household of Reverend Charles.

These were Frances Susannah Mongan born c 1791, Sophia Caroline Mongan born c 1796, and (later Rev) John Charles (J.C.) Mongan, (1798- 1860) who was a Church of Ireland minister. These children were brought up in the Bishop's household as can be demonstrated in contemporary records. Frances Susannah was married, by Bishop Warburton, to The Rev. Thomas Carpenter Carr on January 12th 1812 at St Peter's, Dublin. Three of their children emigrated to Australia, including Charles Warburton Carr. He was born in 1824 in Dublin and emigrated in 1854. He was a very active man in various roles. He became a Police Magistrate, and the town of Warburton in Victoria was named after him. He married Geraldine Mary Kathleen Curr in Kew, Melbourne, Australia in 1864. Meanwhile his mother Frances later assumed the name of he lover Charles Shannon.

Sophia Caroline Mongan married S. G. Fairtlough, the son of Major Samuel Fairtlough, of the 63rd Regiment. Sophia's husband was also an officer in the army before he entered the ministry and graduated from Trinity College Dublin in 1824. In the marriage record Sophia is described as the daughter of John Mongan MD, by a daughter of Colonel Alcock, and niece of Bishop Mongan alias Warburton. They had three sons, Charles-Edward, a Captain in the 63rd Regiment, Samuel, a Lieutenant in the 12th Regiment; and James, a Lieutenant in the 63rd Regiment. They also had two daughters, Isabella-Catherine, wife of Reverend R. Kirchoffer, and Sophy, the wife of Nathaniel-George Philips, a Lieutenant in the 47th Regiment.

A description of John's father Dominic and his family in the Memoirs of Arthur O'Neal, another harpist (referenced in Charles Mongan Warburton's Wikipedia entry), includes the following:

[T]he doctor (John) and the bishop (brother Charles) both read their recantations; the doctor before and the bishop after their father's death. [Dominic] used to travel the north-west circuit with his harp, and at one time, as he was playing for one of the Judges, he asked Dominic his reasons for not speaking to his son, the doctor, since he turned Protestant. 'My Lord' says Dominic, 'I spared no expense on him when he was unable to provide for himself; and assure your Lordship, I am no bigot; but I think it was his duty to consult me before he changed his religion. It was not, however, for the sake of religion he did so, but he fell in love with a young lady who was a Protestant. She informed him she could not have him as he was a Papist, on which he read his recantation, and then demanded her hand, on which, to his mortification, she scornfully informed him that she would be sorry to marry a turncoat.'

This may correlate with a report in the Londonderry Journal of 2 Oct 1778 that a marriage of Dr Mungan of Ballyshannon to Miss Price of Enniskillen had taken place. Two weeks later this report of a marriage was repudiated in Saunders Newsletter of 16 Oct 1778.

Dr John Mongan MD possibly attended Reims University. There is a person listed as Monghan or Morgan from Londonderry who was there in 1765, Clarke Directory of Ulster Doctors. After his degree, Mongan trained as a Sutton small pox inoculator. John Mongan M D Co Tyrone was announced as such in a Sutton advertisement of 14 Dec 1769 in Freemans Journal page 3 As an inoculator, he travelled to towns around the north of Ireland, as for instance, reported in Belfast Newsletter of 14 Feb 1772 stating Dr Mongan had done hundreds of successful inoculations in December 1771 at Ray Tollaghibigley, County Donegal. These sessions took some weeks in each place as there was pre and after treatment of patients.

Architect Daniel Augustus Beaufort reported in his Journal of a tour of Ireland, 1787 that on Nov 3, 1787, he set out for Dr Mungan's house in Enniskillen, because he had experienced troublesome pains on the previous days of his tour. Beaufort says: A delightful day - we drive to Enniskillen to consult Dr Mungan - but he was not at home.

In July 1785, Dr Mongan of Enniskillen had married a Miss Baxter of Omagh but she died 5 months into the marriage, as reported in Londonderry Journal 4 July 1785 and Saunders Newsletter 28 Nov 1785.

The doctor eventually married a Miss Alcock, who was a daughter of John Dormer)Alcock. (c1750-1797) and an unknown mother. John Dormer Alcock later married Henrietta Ashe but Miss Alcock was not a child of that marriage. A fourth child was believed to be a John Mongan who died on board the ship Hindoo en route to Australia. His wife Elinor or Ellen McKelvey, 6 sons and a daughter, eventually settled at Yackandandah, Victoria Australia.

No logbook entry, or death certificate concerning John's death has been found, but according to the front page of his Catholic Bible (Archbishop Croll approved 1836 edition) he was born in Rock Hill County Donegall[sic] and died 4 August 1837.

Subsequently DNA tests proved this John was descended from Dominic O'Mungan despite certain anomalies and contraindications. Would two boys, one named John and one John Charles, be brothers? John owned a Catholic bible, and married the Catholic Elinor McKelvey, who brought up all their children as Catholic; and this allegiance persisted for generations. It would seem John rebelled against the recantations of his supposed father and uncle had embraced as young men looking to make their fortunes, and harked back to the traditional faith of his Mongan family who for centuries were erenaghs (parish administrators) of Termonamongan, County Tyrone, and who produced priests for the Catholic church? The Menapia Quest pp. 155-165 outlines this heritage in detail.

The blind harper remained a Catholic himself. His eldest son Mark died a Catholic priest. The persistent naming of sons in the Australian line as Mark Mongan, suggests it was the dead priest Mark who was the one to be remembered. nd grandson of Dominic Mongan, the blind Harper, remained uncertain.

In the year 2008 Mark Angelo Mongan, the grandson of John of the Hindoo, aged 88 years, living near Yackandandah Victoria Australia, took a Y-chromosome STR DNA test in the hope that his DNA will match that of a male descendant of the Bishop Mongan Warburton. However no descendant of the Bishop was immediately found.

Elaine Hopper, a member of the Australian Mongan line searched tirelessly for DNA candidates. In 2022 her cousin Francis John Mongan agreed to take a BigY-700 Y-chromosome test. He is descended from John Mongan of the Hindoo, through his son, Daniel Mongan of Yackandandah, his son Patrick James Mongan, and his son Connell Thomas Mongan.

Elaine then found a descendent of the Bishop named was Peter Warburton who agreed to take the BigY-700 test. Peter is the 4th great grandson of the harper Dominic O'Mungan, through Bishop Charles Warburton's son, Rev. John Warburton, his son Robert Sandford Warburton, his son Edward Augustus Warburton and his son (Constable) George William Sandford Warburton of Grafton, NSW who had emigrated to Australia.

The DNA results of Francis Mongan and Peter Warburton showed a very close match. Their separation from the rest of the tree of mankind is dated to 1150 AD with a 95% chance it occurred between 739 AD and 1460 AD. Their own most recent ancestor was dated to 1677 AD (1435 AD to 1839 AD). Francis and Peter's presumed common ancestor, Dominic O'Mungan lived from circa 1715 to circa 1775. This falls well within the above date range, so we can be very sure the relationship is confirmed.

Looking at their line further back in the tree of mankind we find a very Ireland centric story. Their branch is referred to as the Atlantic Celtic branch. They arrived in Germany by 2500 BC and founded the Unetice culture. They spread west reaching Britain around 2100 BC and Ireland about 2000 BC. By 50 BC we find a common ancestor of over 3,000 DNA testers who have declared their origins. The proportion from Ireland is 65%. Most of the rest declare either the British Isles or the New World, suggesting many, if not all, have re-emigrated from Ireland.

John married Unknown Alcock. Unknown was born bef 1780.

John is supposed to have married a Miss Alcock as per notes about the Fairtlough family in 'Clerical and Parochial Records of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross' by William Maziere Brady (1864), which refer to "Sophia Caroline dau of John Mongan MD by a dau of Colonel Alcock".

Second Generation

2. Terence Charles Mongan Warburton (Dominic O'Mungan<sup>1</sup>). Terence Charles Mongan was born abt 1754. Terence Charles Mongan died in Cloyne, Cork, Ireland, on 9 Aug 1826. He was buried in Cloyne Cathedral, Cork, Ireland, on 12 Aug 1826.

A good reference to the life of Terence, his forebears and some of his children, is the book 'Menapia Quest', by Norman Mongan (The Herodotus Press, 1995). He was known by the first name Charles and anglicised his surname from O'Mungan to Mongan and then to Warburton as detailed here. He also renounced his Catholic faith and joined the established church, which enabled his career to blossom.

His early education to be a priest was undertaken in France. His first career was as an army chaplain and details are available on the website of the 62nd regiment to which he was for some time attached: http://www.62ndregiment.org/Charles\_Mongan.htm.

The site describes how he served in North America during the American War of Independence. During this time, in 1779 he married Frances Marston, a very well connected New York woman. She was probably his second wife who bore his children and outlived him. Details of his first wife are unknown.

There are also army details in 'From Revolution, Religion, and National Identity: Imperial Anglicanism in British North America 1745-1795' by Peter M. Doll (Fairleigh Dickinson University Press, 2000). Page 243 describes how, after the war, in 1785 "Robert Lowth, now Bishop of London sent the Reverend Charles Mongan, an army chaplain who had been a favourite of Sir Guy Carleton in New York, on a one-year study of the church in Canada".

The 'London Gazette' Issue 13196 published on the 27 April 1790 stated: Dublin-Castle, April 16, 1790. Letters Patent have been passed under the Great Seal of this Kingdom, granting the Deanry of His Majesty's Cathedral Church of St. Patrick, in the Diocese of Ardagh, to the Reverend Charles Morgan, A. M. An ERRATUM in the next issue corrected his name to Mongan.

The London Gazette', issue 13241 published on the 28 September 1790, chronicles Charles Mongan's retirement from the chaplaincy of the 60th (or the Royal American) Regiment of Foot: William Leslie, Clerk, to be Chaplain, by Purchase, vice Charles Mongan, who retires.

In 1792, Mongan changed his name to Warburton as announced in the 'London Gazette' of 22nd May 1792, page 334. The entry reads : The King has been pleased to grant to the Reverend Charles Morgan, Master of Arts, Rector of Loughgilly, in the County of Armagh, and Dean of St Patrick's Cathedral, Ardagh, in the Kingdom of Ireland and his issue, his Royal Licence and Authority to assume and take the Surname of Warburton only, in pursuance of the desire of his maternal cousin-german, Miss Alicia Warburton, spinster, sister of the late William Warburton, of the City of London Esq, deceased; and also to order that His Majesty's concession and Declaration be entered in His College of Arms. The following issue of the London Gazette noted an ERRATUM to the effect that the name was Mongan.

It is not yet known who the Warburton relations, William and the spinster Alicia were, but the term cousin-german, which means a full cousin' would suggest that Charles' mother's surname was Warburton, since Alicia the spinster was a Warburton. The William Warburton is not believed to be the famous Bishop William Warburton.

After changing his name Charles rose in the church, eventually becoming the Bishop of Cloyne, and extremely wealthy and well-connected. The Bishop's correspondence is preserved in 'Additional MS no 35731/35746 and 40227/40356' at the British Library, London.

'Clerical and Parochial Records of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross' by William Maziere Brady (1864), details his children, though it names a Maria and not the Bishop's beloved daughter Selina who died just before him, to his great grief, in 1826 and who is buried near and commemorated with him in Cloyne Cathedral. Nor does it mention a daughter, Charlotte. However the wills of his sons Augustus and Garnett both mention their sister Charlotte. Selina had died by the time the wills were made. A Maria is not mentioned in the wills. There was a Maria Warburton, daughter of the Bishop's son, also a cleric, Charles Warburton, Archdeacon of Tuam, and this may be where the confusion arose.

The Bishop died at Cloyne on 9 August, 1826, and was buried in that Cathedral on 12th August. On his tombstone is this inscription: To the Memory of the RIGHT REV. CHARLES WARBURTON, D.D., Lord Bishop of Cloyne, Deceased 9th August, A.D. 1826, Aged 72 years. This memorial of affectionate Regret is erected by his disconsolate Widow, Frances Warburton, and Children. He was consecrated Bishop of Limerick 13th July, 1806, and translated to this See 20th September, 1820. To a dignified Deportment in the strict Discharge of his Holy Office, he united most engaging Suavity of Manners and unbounded Benevolence.

On 18 Feb 1779 when Terence Charles Mongan was 25, he married Frances Marston in

New York, USA. Frances was born abt 1758.

Frances's parents were Nathaniel Marston (born 1740) and Anna van Courtland (1736-1790).

Nathaniel Marston was the son of a very wealthy New York merchant also named Nathaniel, who he predeceased. In his will of 1774, the senior Nathaniel left his granddaughter, Frances Marston, a house in Hanover Square New York (now Pearl Street) and her sister the adjoining property. He owned a large number of slaves from Jamaica. Nathaniel Marston predeceased his father of the same name.

They had the following children:

- i. Garnett Warburton. Garnett died aft 1848.

In Bentinck Street Major Garnett Warburton, late of the Madras army, and son of the late Bishop of Cloyne. He retired from the service in 1812. (The source of this reference is unknown).

He leaves money to them as well as his pictures to John and his furniture and silverplate to Charles. He makes gifts of money and bequests to his nephew Garnett Philip Maunsell, described in the will as the son of his late sister Charlotte and Rev Archdeacon Maunsell, and to his nieces Charlotte and Selina Deborah daughters of the same couple. By 1848 his other brother Augustus, and his sisters Selina and Charlotte had died.

There is an entry on freebmd Death Index for Garnett Warburton died 1q1851 Marylebone London Middlesex page 149.

- 3 ii. Charles Warburton (1781-1855)
- iii. Augustus Frederick Warburton. Augustus Frederick was born on 27 Nov 1783. Augustus Frederick died in Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, on 20 May 1836. He was buried in Cheltenham, Holy Trinity, Gloucestershire, on 22 May 1836.

As Colonel in the 85th Regiment, in the War of 1812 at Tecumseh, his side was Ann died on 10 Dec 1842.

Charlotte is mentioned in her brothers' wills. In the case of Augustus will of 1836 she is his "sister Charlotte Maunsell." and in the case of Garnett's will made in 1848 she is "late sister".

On 29 Mar 1815 when Charlotte Ann was 25, she married William Wray Maunsell in Limerick, Ireland. William Maunsell married Charlotte, dau. of Charles Warburton, Bp. of Cloyne, and by her had issue, inter alia, two sons, William Wray; and Robert Augustus (now P. His remains are interred in the family vault at St. John's Churchyard. He was the son of William Maunsell, Chancellor of Limerick, and of Lucy, daughter of Philip Oliver, born 1782 in Co. Limerick.
